Your Parents Want to Live in Princeton! Follow Michael Giardino's Lead: Develop

Michael Giardino wanted to make his parents' dream come true.

Mr. Giardino, 29, of 149 Westcott Road, knew that his father attended Princeton University and that his parents were married here and that they always wanted to live in Princeton some day. So, as you or I would do if our parents expressed a desire to find a place in town, Michael — an architect with CUH2A — kept an eye on the real estate market, hoping to find something to the liking of his parents, now living in Summit, New Jersey.

What he saw last year was a listing from Peyton Associates that probably would have tickled the fancy of your parents or mine or anyone else's. A full-page advertisement cited the amenities:

"Surrounded by 129 acres of rolling lawns, gardens, meadows and woods, this handsome Georgian Manor house was created in 1934 with exceptional quality and attention to detail. With a commanding view and an unsurpassed location, it is one of the finest estates in New Jersey.

"The beautiful brick residence has a large entrance hall opening to a sun-filled conservatory, a small reception room, and a notable circular staircase. The large, gracefully proportioned living room with three exposures and marble Adam fireplace overlooks a delightful walled garden. There is a spacious dining room with lovely carved English mantel and a library furnished with antique oak paneling, bookcases and fireplace. There are five principal bedrooms, each with fireplace and private bath, plus three or four secondary bedrooms with three baths.

Lease/Purchase Proposals Outlined For Low Income Housing Production

It has worked in Wilmington, Delaware; it is working in New Brunswick; and it could work in Princeton, according to a team of low- and moderate-income housing proponents who appeared before Borough Council Tuesday night to outline three different lease/purchase proposals that could produce, they believe, as many as 110 units of such housing.

Gerald P. Doherty IV and J. Brian Murphy of the Homeownership Group of Newark, Delaware, were retained by Council in July to begin a study to determine feasible rents and eventual mortgage payments and evaluate possible sites for such housing. They showed up in town Tuesday afternoon with an eight-page report detailing their economic analysis, but deliberately vague about the sites being considered. "We don't want to reveal that until the Borough has all the land under its control," said Mr. Doherty.

Although their analysis was based on "a preliminary evaluation of various sites and their estimated values along with projections of construction costs and interest rates," the consultants said they were "confident" that the plans represent "an economically viable approach to providing low and moderate income housing in the Borough" under the guidelines imposed by the Mount Laurel cases.

The consultants said that the seeds for their concept were sown in Wilmington in the fall of 1981. Mr. Murphy then was working with the mayor of Wilmington; Mr. Doherty was with a developer. Together they took a piece of land that had been neglected for 15 years since Urban Renewal and

You Can't Always Get Your Heart's Desire In Naming a Street

Members of the Regional Planning Board, seldom shy about the conditions they impose on developers, last week told a Township developer, in effect, that they didn't like his name.

The issue arose during the hearing for Michael Giardino's proposed development of the Peyton estate on Pretty Brook Road. Mr. Giardino plans to construct a new road into the property. His choice for the name of the road was Pretty Brook Lane.

The question was raised by Planning Board member Tom Poole, who wondered if that name's similarity to the existing Pretty Brook Road would cause confusion. Mr. Giardino argued that it would not, given "the proximity of the lane to the road and the fact that there would be no duplication of street numbers on the two roads."

RAIN GAUGE SAYS IT ALL: An area backyard measures two inches of rain on a typically rainy day in an extremely wet July. Total rainfall for the month was 9.31 inches, according to Weatherman Dan Mazzarella of Science Associates, who takes his readings on Magnolia Lane. This compares with 3.27 inches of rain in July 1983. It rained 17 out of 31 days in July, with weekends especially hard-hit. So it's not surprising that shore resort owners (not to mention vacationers) were distressed. Even our state's celebrated tomato crop has shown signs of damage. August 1 through 13 has brought us only 1.65 inches of rain, so it may not be necessary to dust off the ark after all.

But another board member, Township Mayor Winthrop Pike, was not convinced. "The first time the rescue squad goes out there it could be trouble."

Would it be trouble? If so, how do the police and fire and rescue squad cope now with the plethora of similar and even identical street names, some of which actually lie miles apart from each other?

Pray, for example, that the rescue squad does not race over to Beech Hill Circle (in the Herrontown Road area) when the call actually is from Beech Tree Drive (in Elm Ridge). Of course, if they are called to Beech Tree Lane and they turn into Beech Tree Drive instead, that's not so serious — both roads are in the same neighborhood. Hope also that the firemen don't end up on Cleveland Road (the extension of Pretty Brook Road, actually, after the intersection of Province Line) rather than Cleveland Lane, in the Borough off of Bayard Lane. But remember, of course, that yet another Cleveland Lane exists in Kingston, off of Raymond Road. It is light years away from the one in the Borough. All of which is not to mention the Cleveland Circle in Montgomery Township. And consider another tough one — Lake Drive and Lake Lane, which are nowhere near each other.

Mixed Opinions. The men and women who have to sort through this nomenclature were nowhere near the Planning Board meeting last week, but several later were asked to evaluate the gravity of the situation. Opinions were mixed.

Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale saw no problem with the similarity of Pretty Brook Road and Lane, particularly since the proposed street would be a branch of its namesake. "One of the first jobs of any new patrol officer is to become familiar with the community," said the chief. "The police should know every street and alley."

As for the rescue squad, the chief pointed out that "most of them know all the streets. If they don't know they will be directed" by the police in the municipality where the call originated.

Mark Freda, president of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, said "it just depends on what kind of directions you're given."

But Ed Obert, the squad captain, said he would rather not take any additional chances. "There's enough of that already," he said of the Pretty Brook Road/Lane nomenclature. "Cherry Hill and Cherry Valley is always a problem. Hillside Road and Hillside Avenue — one's off Walnut; the other's off 206 near Mary Watts's store." (Mr. Obert could have added Hilltop Drive, also off 206.) There's Olden Street and Olden Lane. Fortunately one's in the Borough, the other in the Township, so you can tell which is which by which municipality the call comes from. Then take Rosedale Road and Rosedale Lane — you'll never find the lane unless you've been there. It doesn't even have a street sign.

What about sound-alikes? Mr. Obert cited the potentially confusing Arretton Road and Herrontown Road (or lane or circle in the case of the latter). And, the captain added, "by the time the report gets to us, people — in their haste — just get brief, or forget the last part of the name."

Numbers Help, Too. Not all of Mr. Obert's fellow volunteer rescue workers agreed with him. Some felt that the worst problem was caused by the failure of municipal authorities to notify them when a new street is created. A Pretty Brook Lane designation would at least point them in the right direction.

Mr. Freda noted that, in addition to confusing street names, the rescue squad has been hampered on occasion by poorly illuminated or nonexistent house numbers.

So what did the august planners finally decide in the matter of the Peyton estate proposal and the choice of Pretty Brook Lane vs. Pretty Brook Road? The Planning Board made the choice of name a condition of their approval and voted, 5-3, to stipulate that Mr. Giardino change the name to something distinct from Pretty Brook.

After the vote, Planning Board Chairman Hans Sander offered some good-natured advice to the applicant, "Please don't call it Giardino Lane, okay?"

Another board member, mindful of the original name of the estate being developed, suggested "Peyton Place." The thought drew the biggest laugh of the evening, but would the rescue squad share in the fun? Peyton Place? Gosh, that could be any street in town.

Would You Like to Invest in Land in Princeton? There Are Several (Very) Odd Lots Available

How would you like to own a nice little lot on affluent Fairway Drive, with a lot of history attached to it and with a micro-environment that has been virtually undisturbed for decades?

Or would you be interested in a chunk of real estate on Dodds Lane, or two lots on Oakland Road? We're talking land, folks, and they don't make that anymore. And we also have houses, and you know what that means in Princeton. How about two, — count 'em, two — houses on Leigh Avenue in the Township?

Or hey, you low-income housing advocates! How about an intriguing triangular piece of land on Terhune? You could trot Judge Serpentelli out there some day and show him just how committed you are —

Mount Laurel or no Mount Laurel.

And if you don't like any one of these possibilities, would you consider a package deal? Every one of the aforementioned properties for something on the order of $50,000 — don't be shy, let's talk terms.

It does all sound too good to be true but, nevertheless, the fact is that these very properties, all delinquent in tax payments and unclaimed in tax sales going back as long as

If the original owner comes up with the back taxes in two years all the bidder ends up with is the interest. If the owner fails to pull himself together, then the person who holds the tax lien can foreclose and take over the property.

When no one bids on the tax lien at the tax sale, then the municipality takes it over and holds it unless some buyer in some subsequent year comes forward and expresses an interest.

Now foreclosure is not exactly a pretty way to get your foot in the door of the Princeton real estate market and, in fact, Mr. Clawson can recall no such foreclosures in the three years he has been at his post. At Township Committee last week, Deputy Mayor Gail Firestone raised that issue: "Even though I know we should be fiscally prudent, I have mixed feelings about forcing people out of their houses."

But that situation exists only on Leigh Avenue, and there the Township is continuing to try to "clean up" the problems with the owners of Nos. 7 and 27, according to Mr. Clawson.

Foreclosing on a chunk of neglected land would be far easier. But of the Township properties only the lots on Oakland, Nos. 22 and 26, have generated any substantial interest. Mr. Clawson said that several neighbors wanted to buy the land, which is owned by the estate of the late Maurizio Tuscaro, which is being administered by a lawyer in Ohio. But now the estate is clearing up the back taxes and selling the property in the conventional way.

10 years, were the subject of a brief discussion at Township Committee last week. An auditor examining the Township's books noted the properties and wondered why no one had done anything to foreclose on them and get them back on the productive tax rolls.

What was the catch?

First, as Township Tax Collector John Clawson explained, you have to appreciate the process. Every year, usually in December, the Township holds a tax sale on properties that have unpaid taxes from the prior year. Last year, for example, 15 properties were on the block, bid on in a sort of reverse auction. Buyers open the bidding by offering to pay off the back taxes and charge the owner interest on that amount. The bidding starts at 18 percent interest and may be bid down to zero if the property is particularly desirable.

The Poltergeist Lesson. The other parcels of land are just too darn small to use for anything. The Dodds Lane parcel, with Bert Gulick listed on the books as the owner, measures about 50 feet by 40. Shadybrook Estates is the owner of record on Terhune Road — a fragment of land apparently left over during the creation of a development. It's so small that you would have to try blackmailing the entire Township Zoning Board in an attempt to get the necessary variances.

The Fairway Drive parcel abuts the tennis court of George J. W. Goodman at No. 141. Since Mr. Goodman, under the name of Adam Smith, has established a considerable expertise in finance and investments, you can assume that he would have snapped the land up if it had any potential value.

The problem is that it's small, perhaps 50 by 50, and it has no frontage. When you fight your way through the thorny brambles you discover something else: It's a cemetery. There's the headstone of Caleb Johnson, died 1853; and of Lewis Johnson, died October 13, 1852. Through the underbrush more headstones struggle to stay erect.

Maybe you have always wanted to own a cemetery. Just remember that the further difficulty with this one, according to Mr. Clawson, is that ownership of it is unclear. Moreover, as a cemetery the property might be made tax-exempt anyhow, and the existing tax lien might be "wiped off the books," as the tax collector put it.

If that's not enough, talk to anyone who has seen the movie Poltergeist and ask yourself the question: Would you really want to tamper with that cemetery?

BOROUGH SIDEWALKS

Eyed for Damage. "Inspecting the sidewalks" sounds like a description of what three suspended old men might do to while away the time in front of the general store."

But when Princeton Borough says "inspecting the sidewalks," it means it. Two high school students have literally been out all summer long checking every Borough sidewalk for damage.

Out of the first 375 sidewalks checked, 85 needed work. But many more sidewalks remain to be inspected, and therein lies the problem.

The Borough allows property owners 60 days to repair their sidewalks from the date of the mailing of the first notice. If repairs are not made during this period, the Borough can then step in, do the work, and bill the property owner.

However, given the amount of potential repair work to be done just on the number of sidewalk problems found to date, it would be unlikely that the Borough could follow through with repairs within a reasonable amount of time.

So, while the inspection goes on, Assistant Borough Engineer James Martin will heed the request of Mayor Sigmund and send repair notices out only to a "realistic" number of property owners. Mayor and Council agreed that it would be the wiser course to hold notices until there's at least the hope that the Borough could follow up the 60-day grace period with actual repairs.

MORE MT. LAUREL

At Township Committee. With a September 20 date set for a pre-trial conference in the Calton Homes Mount Laurel suit, Township Committee found itself grappling with the specifics of its proposed low and moderate income housing ordinance.

The discussion, at the end of Committee's Monday night meeting, centered largely on a possible provision that would establish a low and moderate income housing fund by assessing fees to new developers. Under the terms of the draft ordinance, anyone constructing a house up to 999 square feet would be required to pay a fee of 1 percent of the construction cost; anyone building up to 2,000 square feet would have to pay 2 percent; construction of 2,000 square feet or more would require a 3 percent fee; and all commercial developments would be charged 5 percent.

Given the volume of construction in the Township, such a provision might produce a half million dollars annually, noted Mayor Winthrop Pike, but, he added, "I'm told by the lawyers it might be illegal."

Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer predicted that such a fee would draw fire from a homeowner who decides to build a 2,000 square foot "dream house" but who has not in any way contributed to the need for low and moderate income housing. "I don't know how we would respond to this argument," said Mr. Schmierer. "It would be easier to defend if a developer came in with a commercial development that would create jobs and so forth. When there's no connection between someone's new house and the creation of new jobs and the need for affordable housing, that's when it smacks of an illegal tax," the attorney said.

Mayor Pike asked Committee to ponder further provisions of the proposed ordinance dealing with site selection and possible financing mechanisms that could be used by the Township to construct additional low-income housing of its own. "The question is how can we put language in so that it is clear to Judge Serpentelli that we are putting our money where our mouth is," said Mayor Pike, referring to the judge who will handle the Mount Laurel case. "We'll be judged by the law on the books at the time. As I have said before, the gun is cocked and pointed at our head."

Sewers and Speeding. In other business, Committee followed the Borough's suit in authorizing the Sewer Operating Committee to spend $50,000 to inspect houses for improper sewer connections. Committeewoman Gail Firestone recommended that such inspections not begin until after the expiration of the Township's program enabling homeowners to disconnect illegal sump pump connections. Mrs. Firestone also added her support to a suggestion by Councilman Richard Schoch that the Township require inspection of private sewer laterals at the time houses are sold, since money for repairs — which are likely to be expensive — is more readily available at that time.

Mr. Schoch added that other municipalities have drafted ordinances to that effect. "If we can come to grips with private laterals," he said, "then we're getting down to the nitty gritty, where the real problems are."

Correspondence from Robert Hosford, 430 Terhune Road, requested a reduction in speed on Terhune — between Grover and Randall — from 35 to 25. Mrs. Firestone added that she had been contacted by a family with four young children who recently moved to that section of Terhune — "They feel it's an accident waiting to happen."

After Chief Anthony Pinelli commented that a limit of 25 miles per hour "seems unrealistically low" for that section of Terhune, Mayor Pike referred the request to the Traffic Safety Committee.

SHOPPING CENTER DUE. Before Planning Board. The Princeton Regional Planning Board will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Valley Road building to hear the application for modernization and general improvements to the Princeton Shopping Center. That item was originally scheduled for last week's meeting, but the planners ran out of time.

The Shopping Center's proposal is the first major item on Thursday's agenda and the discussion is expected to begin at about 8.

After hearing that proposal, the Planning Board has scheduled a discussion of the Township's proposed low- and moderate-income housing ordinance. Part of the discussion is expected to deal with specific sites that may be recommended for such housing. The agenda calls for the housing talks to begin at about 9 p.m.

At its meeting last week the Planning Board approved the final subdivision plans for Princeton Research Lands at Poor Farm Road and Bunn Drive. It also granted a minor subdivision and consolidation request made by Beatrice Meyerson for her property on Van Dyke Road at Snowden Lane, but denied her request for a waiver of a sidewalk right of way dedication.

The board also approved an application by Princeton High School, seeking to improve the now chaotic parking situation on the circle in front of the school building. Several of the planning board members thought that the new scheme would create difficulty for motorists trying to get in and out of the spaces, but the majority sided with Township Mayor Winthrop Pike, who noted, "Parking at the high school has been a problem for at least the past 20 years."

A request by the Nassau Co-Op Nursery School to conduct its classes at the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club on Terhune Road also was approved. Then the board turned its attention to the proposed subdivision of Michael Giardino, which was also approved. For the details of that application, see page 1.

glint of sunglasses in the display window of a Nassau Street shop, while another was attracted to the contents of a workman's tool box.

The net result: A broken window at Impressions of Princeton and the loss of more than $600 worth of sunglasses, taken sometime between 3:30 p.m. Sunday and 10 Monday morning, and the theft of more than $1,400 worth of tools owned by a Hamilton Square resident who was working at a construction site on Elm Road. He had left his tool box in his pickup truck between 1 and 2:30 p.m. last Thursday.

Bikes, wallets, and tape decks were the more predictable items reported stolen to Borough police.

Bicycles were stolen from the railroad station (a 10-speed Ross, valued at $160); from 100 Stockton Street (a 10-speed Schwinn, $125); from Spelman Hall at the Theological Seminary (a 12-speed Motobecane, $500); and from the rack in front of Firestone Library (a 10-speed Peugeot, $370).

Also from the rear porch of an Alexander Street house (a 10-speed Peugeot, $100); and from the front lawn of 108 Stockton Street (two were taken from this location — a 10-speed and a dirt bike, each of which was valued at $150).

Grad School Target. Thieves seemed to be picking on graduate students stuck in town for the summer. A student left his room in the new Graduate College long enough to take a shower and returned to find $20 missing from his wallet. Another student in the same area went off for the day on Monday and returned to discover that an AM-FM radio and tape deck and a 14 carat gold watch were missing.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS WITH PALMER SQUARE! Marty Lombardo (right) receives an engraved reproduction of a "Park and Shop" parking ticket from Jerry Berner, director of property management for Palmer Square, at a retirement reception held to honor his 45 year association with the Square. Mr. Lombardo started his career with the new town Square on September 1, 1939 as the elevator operator in the just completed building at 44 Nassau Street. Eight days later brought the official opening of the Nassau Tavern, now known as the Nassau Inn. "He has been the un-official greeter and host of our central business district," said Reeves Hicks, former president of the Chamber of Commerce. "We will miss his enthusiasm and the interest he took in each one of us — newcomer or oldtimer."

Another student, living at the old Graduate College, lost almost $800 worth of belongings to a thief who apparently entered the room by removing the window screen some time during the day last Thursday.

Borough Police reported also the theft of a AM-FM stereo cassette and 10 cassette tapes from the car of a Plainsboro resident parked at the Princeton YMCA early one morning last week. Access was gained by breaking the driver's side window. The value of the stolen items was set at $248.

An office at 20 Nassau Street was entered, apparently through a window, and someone made off with two paperweights, one shaped like a key, the other like a clover. The paperweights were gold-colored, but apparently not gold. Their value was estimated at $20.

Two lawn chairs were stolen from a residence on Maple

Terrace. And a Princeton University student, apparently in town over the summer, reported that someone entered her room at the Cloister Inn on Prospect Avenue and took $4 from her wallet and $15 belonging to the club and stored in a cup. That occurred some time between 1:30 and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Cigaret Blamed. Borough Police believe that a careless smoker may have caused a fire to break out last Friday afternoon in a basement storage room in Laughlin Hall on the University campus.

Police said that 21 mattresses being stored in the room were damaged. The amount of the loss was not determined. Captain John Bellow said that the fire "could have started from a misplaced cigaret."

Motorists Fined. Four area residents were among those whose cases came before Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. in Borough Court Monday night.

Dorothy J. Bialas, 9 Shadowstone, Lawrenceville, was fined $60 for disregarding a traffic signal. David B. Stone of 27 Witherspoon Street was found guilty of the same offense.

Two motorists were fined for making illegal U-turns. Robert S. Chaykowsky of 58 Audubon Lane paid $60; and Neil A. Campeas of Penn- ington, paid $25.

JUVENILE IS CHARGED

With Thefts at Pool Complex. A 14-year-old Princeton juvenile has been charged with six thefts during July and August at the pool complex in Community Park.

Sunday evening, Ptl. Renn Kaminski and Officer David Glacken responded to a 7:10 call reporting a theft. Upon their arrival they spoke to the victim, an employee at the pool complex, and a witness. They identified the juvenile as the one who had taken $10 from a knapsack in the employees' locker room.

The following day, the youth was interviewed by Juvenile Officer Peter Savalli and Sgt. Jerry Offredo. As a result of that interview, he was charged with five other thefts from the employees' locker room during July and August. The amount of money stolen in the thefts totalled $167.85.

The youth was later released to his parents, pending further action by a juvenile court. "The court has the power to order restitution and we are hoping that will happen," commented Sgt. Offredo.

He added that there were no forced entries in any of the thefts. The suspect, he said, would wait until he found an unlocked locker or unattended knapsack.

In an unrelated theft, a Princeton resident told police that $20 had been stolen from his clothing in the pool locker room while he was at the complex last Wednesday from 6:50 to 8 p.m. Ptl. James Delaney is investigating.

PARKED CARS ENTERED
And Looted. Three parked cars in the Township were entered overnight and looted of stereo and radio equipment. All the incidents took place between 9 p.m. and 8 the following morning.

Taken from a 1981 Honda parked in front of the home of its Ober Road owner was an AM-FM cassette radio valued at $250. Police report the car was unlocked.

A car parked in front of the victim's home on Newlin Road yielded a $300 radio-tape cassette recorder and a radar detector valued at $200.

The 1980 Toyota of a visitor from Marlborough, Ct., was entered while it was parked in a driveway on Springdale Road. Taken were a portable AM-FM stereo cassette ($185), 15 tapes ($150) and a change box containing $25. Police said

One Dish Down, Another Comes Up

When it comes to the issue of microwave transmissions, it is apparently better to receive than to give.

The Hopewell Township Zoning Board last week rejected a controversial application to construct a 125-foot microwave relay tower on Province Line Road. The proposed tower would have consisted of eight satellite "dishes," each eight feet in diameter, which would have been used to relay long-distance telephone signals.

About 25 citizens attended a special meeting of the Zoning Board to register their concerns about the esthetic values of the project and, in some cases, their fears of possible health hazards resulting from the microwaves. A certified health physicist testifying for the applicants, Icom Inc. and Eastern Microwave Inc., stated that microbeams are transmitted in an extremely narrow band and that little radiation is spilled from this band. The Zoning Board voted the project down, 6-1.

In another case before the Hopewell Township Zoning Board, AT&T was granted permission to construct a temporary, four-foot microwave dish at its facility on Carter Road. The dish will be pointed toward a relay tower in Hamilton Square and will be used to pick up video presentations from AT&T headquarters in New York during an executive training session being held this fall.

The vote in favor of this proposal was 4-3. The Zoning Board secretary noted that this dish only receives signals; it does not transmit them.

politely, police said, and then solicited a lewd act.

The man rode off toward Kingston when the victims did not reply. They notified police and Officer James Delaney responded and searched the area without success. Police are looking for a tall, well-built, white male suspect about 40 years old. He has naturally curly sandy hair and was wearing a red T-shirt and white tennis shorts.

The victims, police said, were residents of Princeton and Skillman.

The theft was reported to Township police last week but the bowl was taken, police said, sometime between January and May of this year. According to police, the victim had removed the bowl from a safe and left it out. Later, she didn't recall if she had put it back in the safe or not and discovered it missing in May.

A boy's Raleigh 10-speed bicycle was stolen between 2 and 2:40 Friday afternoon from the Princeton Shopping Center.

The bike had been locked to a pole with a chain and the chain had been cut, police said. The owner is a Kingston resident.

WHAT PRICE SECURITY?

Try $995. For $995 plus a $22 monthly cable fee, residents of Princeton Borough and Township can guard their homes against burglary, fire and water damage.

The new alarm system, called "Safewatch," carries messages over the cables of Home Link Communications of Princeton. It is one of the first home security systems in New Jersey to work through cable television.

In the event of a problem, electronic sensors, placed around doors and windows and under carpets and the ground, send electronic messages to a device connected to cable lines.

These messages travel to Home Link's Ewing Street site and then to an ADP monitoring site in Lawrence. From there, ADT — the company that installs the actual security system — notifies local police or fire officials.

The $995 base price covers sensors for three doors. For a higher price, there are underground "seismic sensors" that detect backyard intruders, "tamper devices" that identify circuit tampering, and heat sensors.

Princeton is a test market for ADT's cable edition of Safewatch.

TWO ARE CHARGED

With Drunken Driving. Two drivers from outside the Princeton area were charged by Township police last week with driving while intoxicated.

Allan J. Bates, 30, of New York City, was charged with DWI and with refusing to take a Breathalyzer test. He was later released in $250 bail, pending his appearance here in court September 18.

Mr. Bates was observed by Ptl. John S. Seeley at 3:05 Sunday morning on Kingston Road. His car was weaving and traveling at a slow rate of speed. Police followed the car for three-quarters of a mile and motioned it over at the intersection of Snowden Lane where it went off the roadway and came to rest in some tall grass before stopping.

Bruce C. Hofer, 19, of Huntington Valley, Pa., was stopped and arrested after police observed his car crossing over the center line and weaving erratically on Stockton Street near Lovers Lane shortly after 1 Thursday morning.

He stopped his car abruptly in the center of the roadway after it had crossed over the center line and veered toward the patrol car. While making the arrest, police observed a marijuana cigarette in the ash tray and charged Mr. Hofer with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana in addition to driving while intoxicated. Later released, he faces a September 18 hearing in court.

BAY WINDOW TARGET

Of Green Marhle. A 42 by 48-inch bay window of a Shady Brook Lane home was broken last week by a green marble which police found between the window and an interior window. Police said that the victim did not hear anything during the time period when the vandalism occurred between 10 Saturday night and the next day.

While painters were painting a home on Prospect Avenue last week, they found two BBs embedded in the wooden siding. Someone, police said, had shot them against the home. Det. Peter Savalli is investigating.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

MITE WATCH-
with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Deciduous trees often take on a bronze, dusty look this time of year. Spruce, Hemlock, Arborvitae, even Azaleas, Boxwood and Privet may have a chlorotic appearance. Too often this is dismissed as due to hot, dry weather. The cause, many times, is an infestation of mites, some so tiny that hundreds congregate on a single leaf. Mite damage is not merely marring the green appearance of leaves and needles, but in actuality, sapping the tree's vitality. Twig dieback may result in some areas where drought conditions exist this can hasten a tree's decline. Mites can be controlled by spraying the leaves with a miticide. Supplement this spraying with a "deep-root" application of a balanced liquid fertilizer to help restore the tree's vigor. To determine if your tree has mites just make this simple test - shake or beat a few twigs over a sheet of paper or cardboard. Mites that drop can be seen scurrying across the paper.

Do watch your Dogwoods carefully if the hot, dry weather continues! The stresses on Dogwoods in our area over the past few years has taken its toll on many specimen trees. Consider deep root feeding to help combat Dogwood injury.

Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) with any questions you may have concerning your valuable trees and shrubs.

count at Riverside is 45. Final figures will not be available until after the opening of school.

A new first-and-second-grade class unit is being formed at Community Park. Other class formations are being altered to reflect the higher-than-anticipated enrollment, not only in kindergarten but also in the primary grades.

No one is quite sure where all these youngsters are coming from, but a substantial number will be children from Hibben-Magie University housing, the Institute for Advanced Study, and Princeton Theological Seminary. This is the second year that Community Park has had youngsters from all three, and there appears to be an especially high concentration of young children this year at the Institute.

WAWA, NEIGHBORS MEET
And Agree. The new WaWa in the former Viking Furniture Store on Nassau Street will open in early December — and it will open on good terms with its Murray Place neighbors.

This is the result of a meeting held last week between Princeton Borough and representatives of WaWa and Murray Place. The meeting had been set up to deal with the concerns of Murray Place residents about the garbage, noise and traffic problems they feared would arrive with the store.

Meeting participants included Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund; WaWa Real Estate Director Harry McHugh, Attorney Sidney Hofing, and Murray Place resident Bernard Jensen.

WaWa agreed to the following:

- It will compact and retain all garbage inside the store and bring it outside only for collection.
- All brush along the lot line between WaWa and Murray Place will be cleared.
- Customer parking will be confined to the front of the store.
- The back parking lot will be landscaped and paved. It will be reserved for employees' use only. Lighting will not be added.

A six-foot wooden fence will be installed along the side parking lot next to Murray Place and the back parking lot. Plantings near the fence will provide additional screening.

Residents had been concerned that the store would be open 24 hours a day. However, its hours will most likely be from 6 a.m. to 1 a.m. WaWa may make adjustments according to demand, but it was pointed out that only 100 of its 300 stores are open 24 hours a day, and this number drops to 40 or 50 in the winter.

CAMPAIGN IS READED
For United Way. Next month, the United Way-Princeton Area Communities will kick off its fund-raising drive to raise $1.6 million for its member agencies.

Approximately 1500 volunteers, assisted by the five staff members of the United Way, are working on the brochures, pledge cards, and posters that will be used to help raise money. The volunteers also help to decide which local organizations are to be funded, and in what amount.

The campaign is being led this year by Robert P. Clagetti, general manager of AT&T Technologies in Hopewell. He is assisted by Albert J. Hanson, regional vice president of McGraw-Hill in Hightstown.

The campaign committee has 11 divisions: research and industry firms, corporate, special and personal gifts (the two residential solicitations), Princeton University, mercantile, professional offices, education (public and private), financial institutions, government and building trades.

Roderick McNealy of Johnson & Johnson Baby Products in Skillman is leading the public relations committee, which is responsible for planning and producing all of the promotional and educational materials used by the United Way.

Through the work of the United Way volunteers, more than 38,000 people who live or work in the greater Princeton area will receive services from the United Way agencies this year.

CHALLENGE GRANT

To University. The William and Flora Hewlett Foundation has awarded Princeton University a $300,000 grant to enhance its undergraduate program. The grant has been made on a challenge basis. To claim the Hewlett funds, Princeton must raise $900,000 from other sources to create an endowment, the income from which will be used to develop new courses, strengthen curricular offerings and sponsor special lecture series.

The grant is one of several made under the foundation's new program to help selected research universities undertake new initiatives at the undergraduate level.

"This is a particularly timely moment for the creation of a discretionary fund to strengthen undergraduate education," said Princeton President William G. Bowen. "The economic pressures of the past decade caused many universities to concentrate on preserving existing programs, often at the expense of new educational ventures."

The Hewlett grant will provide us with welcome flexibility to test for a year or two some imaginative new courses and programs for our undergraduates. We will then be challenged to find ways to continue the most successful of these ventures."

Specific initiatives to be supported from the fund will be determined by a competitive annual review. Areas in which faculty and students have expressed interest include interdisciplinary ventures in law, political theory, ethics, public policy, science/technology/public policy, women's studies, and American studies, development of new courses in Western and non-Western cultures, and computer-related curriculum projects in the humanities. The review process will be overseen by Dean of the College Joan S. Girus.

"This very generous grant from the Hewlett Foundation will enable us to think more creatively about ways to strengthen undergraduate education at Princeton," said Dean Girus. "Funds from the new endowment will be awarded to those initiatives suggested by University faculty and students which show the greatest merit and promise."

NEW COURSE TO BEGIN

In Public Relations. A new three-credit course in public relations will begin Monday, August 27, from 7:10 to 9:50 p.m. at Mercer County College's West Windsor campus.

The course is designed for students interested in a career in public relations and anyone who currently has public and community relations responsibilities at work or in a community group.

Topics covered will include writing press releases and radio public service announcements, buying advertising space and time, writing advertising copy, dealing with media in crisis situations, publications design, graphics and printing, and planning a public relations budget.

FREE MAPS OFFERED

To Cyclists. The Department of Transportation has announced that the first of a series of bicycle tour guide maps are now available for recreational cyclists. Guides for other routes will be available shortly.

Each map contains a short description of the origin of the route, points of interest along the way, an indication of the quality of the roads and type of terrain, the amount of traffic found along the route, and general tips for safe cycling. Many of the map also offer shorter versions of the full tour.

The routes covered in the first four guides are:

Old Mine Road. This scenic route follows a road built in 1659 by Dutch settlers. The 42.9 mile route runs through the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area to Port Jervis, New York. Included on the tour are Paters Valley Craft Center and Dingman's Ferry.

Three Easy River Rides. The Canal Road along the Delaware Raritan Canal between East Millstone and Rocky Hill, the Batsto to Bass River ride, and the Lamington River Valley tour are easy, fairly level routes on low-traffic roads through scenic and historic areas in Hunterdon, Somerset and Burlington Counties.

Round Valley Roundabout. This circuit around Round Valley Reservoir and through Oldwick, Mountainville and Stanton in eastern Hunterdon County was originally routed by the West Jersey Wheelmen Bicycle Club. The route offers numerous opportunities for side trips or longer tours.

Pine Barrens River Ramble. This route offers an easy, level series of loops through the Pine Barrens, all of which include the historic Batsto Village. The extended tour also includes Chatsworth, the "capitol of the Pines."

The maps can be obtained free of charge by sending written requests to William Feldman, DOT's Bicycle Advocate, 1035 Parkway Avenue, Trenton, NJ 08625.

'LIVING FARM' IS OPEN
 Demonstrations Set. The Howell Living History Farm in Hopewell Township is now open to the public.

The farm is located off Route 29 on Valley Road in Hopewell Township. For a brochure listing the farm's Saturday programs for this summer, call the Mercer County Park Commission office at 989-6533.

Princeton University has received a one-year grant of $70,000 from the American Cancer Society to support Professor Jane Flint's research in "Regulation of Transcription of Adenovirus Genes." An associate professor of molecular biology, she has focused her research on the basic mechanisms that cause normal cells to become tumorigenic.

A British citizen by birth, Professor Flint was educated at University College, London, and received her doctorate in biochemistry and molecular biology from the University of London in 1973. She did postdoctoral work at the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory and Massachusetts Institute of Technology before joining the Princeton faculty in 1977 as assistant professor of biochemical sciences.

She was promoted to associate professor in 1981 and will transfer to the new Department of Molecular Biology in September. In 1983-84 she served as director of the Program in Molecular Biology, which coordinated the establishment of the new department.

TO THE MANOR BORN: This is only the backyard of the Peyton estate on Pretty Brook Road, but the front view — we are assured — is just as elegant. The 130-acre estate was built by Bernard Peyton in the 1930s. His widow, who owns several other properties out-of-state and who has been spending less time in Princeton, is selling it to 29-year-old developer Michael Giardino. Mr. Peyton was a distant relative of Realtor Tod Peyton, whose agency listed the property and now has been selected to list the building lots and houses that Mr. Giardino plans to develop there.

Peyton Property

The property includes large swimming pool, pool house, tennis court, a separate studio/shop building, multi-car garage with apartment, two smaller cottages, greenhouse, maintenance building, private skeet-shooting range, and some of the most desirable residential land in the Princeton area.

For properties such as this the real estate people do not discuss asking prices. The offering price for this estate was $2,750,000. You or I — not to mention our parents — might have been deterred; Michael Giardino was not. He inspected the property, liked it, and agreed to buy it in partnership with his father. Last week he won final approval from the Planning Board to develop the land into a residential subdivision of 24 lots. The original manor house will be maintained on a lot of 22 acres. Mom and Dad should be moving in within a few months.

For young Mr. Giardino, the story began when his parents moved from Princeton to Summit, where his father became president of a company that deals in construction equipment. "They moved out of Princeton," the son says, "because they thought they would have a better chance of getting their kid into Princeton if they didn't live right in town."

As luck had it, Michael attended Wesleyan University, graduating with a B.A. in 1977, before earning his master's degree in architecture from Penn in 1980. Mr. Giardino moved to Princeton and CUH2A about 3½ years ago. His parents, meanwhile, decided that with both of their children grown up they had no more reason not to live in Princeton.

At that point the father and son began talking about a business partnership. The son, now married and the father of a 1½-year-old daughter, cut back his work at the firm to part time and began work on the Pretty Brook development. What evolved, he says, "is not a one-shot deal," though he and his father do plan to concentrate on the Pretty Brook project until it is well under construction.

The Giardinios' operation clearly is not designed to throw up as many houses as possible as quickly as possible. "If you look at the Township's cluster ordinance, you could get 70 units in there. If you figure in the proposed low-income houses, you could get the density really high," said Michael. "But we don't think that's the best use of that land, which is one of the most beautiful pieces in that part of town."

Quality Closely Controlled. 24 houses that are built (on lots ranging in size from 2.3 to 7.7 acres) can be expected to reflect — in some way — Mr. Giardino's personal architectural taste. "Some of the houses we will design and build; some I will just design. And I'm sure some people will want to have their own architects. But we're working now to develop the association by-laws, and we're going to have control over the quality of that environment."

First, of course, Mr. Giardino had to subject his plans to the collective scrutiny of the Planning Board members and their staff of professional engineers. The young developer wanted Pretty Brook Lane as the name for the road leading into his project; the board members did not (see story, page 1). One of the engineers wanted a 12-foot travel lane, instead of Mr. Giardino's proposed nine feet. The young developer stuck to his guns and the Planning Board relented.

An engineer wanted stone or rip-rap to line the drainage swales. A consultant hired by the developer said firmly that "The plans call for hydro-seeding of swale with jute matting or the sodding of the swales if necessary. Mr. Giardino believes that stone or rip-rap would detract from the esthetics."

Possible Sewer Line. Township Engineer Robert Kiser said that he wanted the Planning Board to demand an easement to allow for the possible extension of a sewer line along the Stony Brook. Such an easement would pass through eight of his lots and Mr. Giardino was not pleased at that prospect. "I put myself in the place of a person owning one of these prime lots, with a beautiful view of the river," he said. "That's a pretty uneasy feeling having that kind of uncertainty across your land."

Mr. Giardino's lawyer, Thomas Jamieson, was more

Why the Hostility?

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have noticed recently, both in letters to the Editor and in your reports of various open meetings, that there seems to be a great deal of hostility toward the changes that the new owners are making on Palmer Square.

I am sorry to see this because, aside from the fact that most of the major proposed changes seem to me to be logical and necessary, the hostility now seems to be spreading to even minor details of decoration. Why is this, I wonder?

The benches are comfortable, weathering beautifully, and are so well placed that some sense of privacy can be maintained. The fountain is dignified and about as vandal proof as the hand of man can make anything. But, aside from rather liking them myself, they hardly seem important enough for anyone to feel that strongly about. Why such hostility?

I believe, after months of unsatisfied curiosity, I may have found the answer. While reading John Updike's latest book, "The Witches of Eastwick," I came across a character described as "overplaying her hand as people of minor distinction — vice-presidents of savings banks, granddaughters of clipper-ship captains will."

I think this offers a clue. There are in every older community people of "minor distinction" — I would have said "local distinction" — who have come to feel that anything done without their approval is an Unauthorized Alteration. That anything done in the face of their disapproval is in essence illegal and, if allowed to go unchallenged, will diminish their Dignity and Authority. Of course, an owner may decorate his property as he chooses.

There is nothing to prevent Collins Development from distributing painted concrete gnomes. As a long time resident of Palmer Square, I am delighted that the alterations that have been made have been so sensible and well designed. Certainly, if renovations continue as they have begun, I will be well satisfied.

CHARLES E. GREENE

Summer Sounds a Success.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Many thanks to the people of Princeton for making this year's Summer Sounds Concert Series so memorable. The enthusiasm and cooperation of those who attended made the concerts special for everyone. Because of donations by many people in the audience, I was able to add an additional show at the end of the series.

I found great satisfaction in helping those virtually unknown bands find exposure in the Princeton area among an all-ages crowd. This year the bands came from as far away as Boston (The Three Colors), Philadelphia (The Impossible Years), and Hoboken (The Cucumbers). The more local bands included the Rettmans, Matrix Fulcrum, Mojo Bone, and the John Bianculli Quintet. I congratulate and thank all of these bands for making every concert fantastic.

The concerts are made possible by a grant from The Princeton Youth Fund and supported by The Arts Council of Princeton and The Princeton Recreation Department.

As director of Summer Sounds I gained a greater understanding of the demands of the public and those of the musicians. My sincerest thanks to both the Arts Council and the Recreation Department for giving me this opportunity.

Impressive Swim Program.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is a copy of a letter we have sent to Jack Roberts, Princeton Recreation Department.

Year after year we are pleased and impressed by the swimming program offered at Community Park pool. The teachers are unfailingly cheerful, kind, and well-trained. The children learn swimming and water safety and always feel they have made a new friend.

In a group that is always very good, indeed, the diving instructor this year is outstanding. We thank you for the good program and for having Joe Raush. We wish him well and hope we'll see him at CP again.

Where Can You Buy a Hot Dog in Town? New Hot Dog Plus Rolls In with the Answer

Find a need and fill it. It's basic to any business success, and it's the path followed by one of Princeton's newest business ventures.

The need? That good old American institution — the hot dog.

"I think it's needed. Where can you buy a hot dog?" asked Norman Servis. "You can go to a restaurant and get a steak or a hamburger but no hot dog. Maybe you just want a hot dog and nothing else."

Mr. Servis is presently Lt. Norman Servis of the Township police department. He's been a part of the Princeton community for a long time, long enough to remember that there used to be a number of hot dog stands in Princeton in the late 1930s and 40s.

• Lt. Servis is scheduled to retire in November, capping a 30-year police career. But he describes himself as more than a police officer. "I'm a businessman," he says. "Always have been."

Joining with his old boss and longtime friend, former Township police chief Fred Porter, now retired, and Mrs.

REPEAT CUSTOMERS: "Very good. A good-tasting hot dog. That's why we came back a second time." That was the verdict of electrician Dave Cifelli (left) and his assistant Bruce Aanonsen about the hot dogs served by Hot Dogs Plus. Story on new venture in town this page.

spicy," said Mrs. Tusa. "It's very different from the natural hot dog."

Prices range from $1 for a plain dog with relish, onions and mustard up to $1.60 for a Jigger Special which comes with bacon and sauteed onions.

In the mood for something else? How about a Kraut with onions, "Push Cart" with onion sauce, cheese or cheese and bacon, a chili dog or Hot Spicy Mexican, the latter her own invention, says Mrs. Tusa. It comes with Nacho cheese spread and hot, spicy taco sauce. Or a Texas Wiener with ground beef and onions which shares the top price scale with the Jigger Special.

The Jigger Special is named after Jigger, who had a hot dog cart in the late 1930s and early 40s on University Place near the dormitories. "When I first knew him he had moved in front of Upper Pyne Hall which was torn down and where the Princeton Bank and Trust is now," recalled Lt. Servis.

"The Balt Restaurant was right next door but it didn't make any difference; they liked Jigger's hot dogs. He had a tin box with charcoal and a grill on top of the box and he would cook his hotdogs and onions and bacon together on top."

"Chief Maguire had a stand on Nassau near Witherspoon Street before he became a policeman," Lt. Servis continued. Lt. Frank Maguire was a longtime member of the Borough police department before he left to become Chief of the West Windsor PD.

"There was an old Greek fellow," Lt. Servis went on, "who had an old Plymouth car with the top cut out and a grill built over the top. He was on Nassau Street near Washington Road. I remember he had white gas and it exploded on him once but he went back."

Another spot recalled by Lt. Servis was the G&L (for George & Louie) Restaurant in the old Benson Building on the corner of Witherspoon and Spring Streets, later gutted in a spectacular fire.

The only advice he gives her, she says, is over the phone.

As a first step, Lt. Servis and Mr. Porter bought a truck, tore everything out and redid the inside. Hot Dogs Plus was licensed by the Borough and Township and West Windsor and by the Board of Health and by July 9 they were ready for their first day of business.

"It's gone quite well, considering we haven't done any advertising and started late in the season," Mrs. Tusa reported. "I'm looking forward to fall when the students return. She also said that she would love to move uptown."

"So many people from the Palmer Square area have told

BUSINESS

Pat Tusa, Lt. Servis has an answer now to the question, "Where can you buy a hot dog in Princeton?"

• Their mobile Hot Dog Plus stand can be found parked on lower Nassau Street on the lot in front of Ivy Inn on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 11 to 2:30, and judging from the early response, there are a lot of frustrated hot dog lovers out there. On this particular day, Mrs. Tusa had sold out by 1:10. "That's the first time that's happened," she said.

On Mondays and Fridays Hot Dog Plus is parked on Roszel Road just off Alexander Street in West Windsor near the new Post Office construction.

"Right now the students are not back and a lot of people are on vacation so it's hard to judge how we're doing," commented Lt. Servis.

"I just feel it's something needed; I don't think it hurts the character of the town."

No one has said anything, he added quickly, "but you expect something from someone in this town."

"You're active with people. You talk with 'em, you kid with 'em. I like that. I think it's fun. I hope it pans out. I'm satisfied."

If Hot Dogs Plus sold ordinary hot dogs it would have less cachet and could not bill itself as "The Roving Gourmet." But it sells, says Lt. Servis, Sabbrett hot dogs, the same that are used in the push carts and hot dog stands in New York City and not sold in a market.

"It has a natural casing and is all beef. Its flavor is very us they'd love it if we could find a place to park up there. But to find a spot would be difficult."

"If we can move around I think it will catch on," agreed Lt. Servis. "We're going to try but it is so restrictive in the Borough. It's so tough. Everything is metered."
Meantime Hot Dogs Plus will continue to fill the hot dog gap in Princeton — and at reasonable prices.
Where else can you get lunch for $1.50," asks Mrs. Tusa. "I don't think there is any place in Princeton where you can get that."

SHOPPER SURVEY SET
By Princeton Merchants. Shoppers visiting Palmer Square and Nassau Street the week of August 20 are likely to experience more than the usual interest in them on the part of the shopkeepers. The Princeton Borough Merchants Association, a division of the Chamber of Commerce, will be conducting a survey that week of their customers.
Developed under the direction of Leonard Wood, senior vice president of the Gallup Organization, the questionnaire is designed to gather information about the customer base of the Princeton merchants. Shoppers will be asked where they live, where else they shop, what else they do while in Princeton, and other questions.

Sales personnel from participating stores have been trained to conduct the survey. Among the stores conducting the survey are Alan Royce, H.P. Clayton, Edith's Lingerie, the English Shop, H. Gross & Co. Outfitters, Langrock, Lavake Jewelers, Forest Jewelers, the Princeton University Store, Richard's Shoes, Talbots, and J.B. Winberie restaurant.

The survey will be the second launched by a Chamber group this summer. Earlier the Chamber and the Gallup organization surveyed residents of the 14 communities that are included in the Chamber's membership area. Respondents were asked to state their opinions of their communities, the schools, traffic, etc.
The results of that survey are expected to be presented to the public sometime in the fall.

CAN'T BEAR THE HEAT?

Take it Easy . . .

Slow down ... pretend you live deep in the heart of Dixie. You can handle the heat and humidity of central New Jersey a lot better if you lower your own speed limit.

Forget your purposeful stride, and stroll instead ... if you're gardening or mowing the lawn, do it in slow motion and stop every 15 or 20 minutes to cool down and have a long drink of water ... simplify your life: don't plan anything you may have to accomplish in a deadline rush.

Heat? What heat?

Stop looking at the thermometer, listening to weather broadcasts and moaning about the heat. So it's hot. It's summertime, you know. If you slow your pace and stop thinking about the heat all the time, you'll cool down. (Well, not much, but you'll feel the heat less if you forget about it.)

Liquid Assets.

Put away the heavy alcoholic beverages. Stay away from sugary drinks and those with a high salt content. Drink a lot of water — even when you don't think you're thirsty. Pack a tall glass with a lot of ice and fill it with water. Let it marinate while the ice chills the water. Drink up.

As you drink more, eat less. The work your body has to do to digest food increases temperature. Avoid hot foods and heavy meals.

Don't take salt tablets. You're probably getting more sodium than you need, anyway.

Take frequent cool showers or even cool baths, especially if you have no air-conditioning.

Sun — who needs it?

If you're a jogger or tennis-player, try to schedule your exercising for the coolest part of the day. As a rule, this means very early morning. After a long, hot day, the early evening hours aren't all that cool.

Stay out of the sun, if you can. Draw the draperies or pull the blinds of your house so that the mid-day and later afternoon sun can't reach inside. This is especially important if you don't have trees or shrubs around your house.

A cooling dip in the pool is fine, if you remember to protect yourself from the sun when you climb out of the pool. A blistering sunburn during a heat-wave isn't a fit companion.

How Old Are You?

Most deaths from the heat happen to people over 65. Government statistics show that heat stroke rates in people over 65 are 12 to 18 times higher than in the rest of the population.

You're also vulnerable if you're taking medicine for high blood-pressure, especially diuretics.

And — or had you noticed? — you feel the heat more if you're too fat.

Heat Stroke, Heat Exhaustion.

With heat exhaustion, your body temperature rises, you sweat heavily, you feel weak and nauseated.

With heat stroke, you become faint, dizzy, nauseated, mentally confused. You may even lose consciousness. You have rapid pulse, flushed skin and you aren't even sweating.

If you're with someone who has these symptoms, get the person into a cool place, and try to get him or her to drink as much fluid as possible. Wet the body with water at room temperature, and fan the wet body vigorously. Put ice-packs, if you can, on neck, stomach and groin.

And call the doctor.

Remember Your Pet.

Leaving a pet in a parked car can be deadly. Temperature in a car can reach 160 degrees in just minutes, even when the windows are partially open.

Heavy panting, glazed eyes, rapid pulse rate, dizziness, vomiting or a deep red or purple tongue are all signs of heat stress. If this happens,

- Apply ice packs or cold towels to the head, neck and chest.
- Don't allow your pet to consume unlimited amounts of cold water.
- Provide an ice cube or ice cream.
- Take your pet directly to a veterinarian.

My car? Why worry about my car?

You should, especially if you have a small compact, a four-cylinder car you're planning to take on vacation.

Remember: it's not an eight-cylinder Hercules. If you're going to pack it with all four kids and the dog and everybody's suitcases and the tent and sleeping bags on top ...

You'll find yourself with an over-heated car, maybe even a burned-out transmission and broken springs. You can't ask a dachshund to be a pack-horse.

Small-car makers have a few suggestions:

- Don't overload. Look in the owner's manual — maybe there are recommended load limits.
- Keep proper tire pressure.
- Before you leave, check the oil and make sure you have the right kind for hot-weather driving.
- Some manufacturers recommend a solution in your radiator of 50 percent antifreeze, 50 percent water, to make sure everything is properly cool.
- On the road, stop frequently to let everything cool down — including yourself.
- During pit stops, check the oil level, transmission and radiator overflow tank.
- Don't go over 55 miles an hour.

But most of all ...

Take it easy. You just can't live the way you do in October or April. And remember ...

Six months from now, it will be February.

New Jersey Has One of Last Primeval Forests; Managed as Major Ecological Research Center

NATURE TAKES ITS COURSE: Fallen logs left to decay are a mark of an uncut forest, says Richard Forman, director of the Hutcheson Memorial Forest in Franklin Township. A tree trunk that lands directly on the soil will take about 40 years to compost itself back into the soil, he says, whereas one that falls on something that keeps it off the earth will take longer. In the process it will be a boon to birds and beetles.

In the midst of talk of gridlock, density and the city of office buildings springing up on Route 1, thoughts turn to the forest primeval, the murmuring pines and the hemlocks...

There is a primeval forest in Central New Jersey. Unlike Longfellow's Acadia, it is an oak forest, mixed with beech, hickory and ash. Covering 65 acres of land in a strip one mile long by a quarter mile deep, these woods have the rare distinction of having never been cut over by man. Moreover there is no evidence of fire since 1711.

So says Richard T.T. Forman, for the past 12 years director of The William L. Hutcheson Memorial Forest. Mr. Forman is a Princeton resident and a professor of botany at Rutgers University. The Forest, a facility owned and managed by Rutgers University, is located on Amwell Road, east of East Millstone. Once known as Mettler's Woods, it is one of the last remaining hardwood forests on the east coast that dates back to Indian times.

Because it is a rarity and must be protected from human damage, it has been turned into a laboratory from which the general public is for the most part excluded. However, tours are conducted on announced Sundays throughout the year by botanists, zoologists and ornithologists who are members of the Rutgers faculty.

Dutch Settlement. Recorded history of the forest goes back to 1701 when a Dutchman named Mynheer Cornelius Van Liew homesteaded the area and left a strip of woods untouched. Rutgers began studying the forest in 1952, Mr. Forman says, and learned then that it was destined for the saw mill. An intensive campaign was initiated by a Citizens Committee for the Preservation of Mettler's Woods to raise $150,000 to purchase 150 acres. Many Princeton residents, including garden clubs, took part in the effort.

The turning point, Mr. Forman says, was an 11-page spread in Life magazine in 1955 that was reprinted in the Time-Life series, The World We Live In. The article attracted a lot of attention, including that of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners whose president, William L. Hutcheson, had just died. In his memory, the Union bought the land and deeded it to Rutgers. The funds that had been raised by the citizens went into an ecological endowment fund to maintain the forest.

Thus Rutgers formally acquired the property in 1955 with the objective, Mr. Forman says, of maintaining the old woods in their natural state and to study the property. Written into the deed is a mandate for research, "maybe the only deed I know of that says, 'you must do research,'" he notes.

As a consequence, the Hutcheson Forest may well be the best model of natural area management in the country, Mr. Forman thinks, and is a major ecological research center. Some 125 articles and 68 theses based on research conducted in the forest or the surrounding land have been published, along with similar numbers of extracts from professional meetings.

Extensively Studied. More than 176 scientists have been involved in both long and short term research projects. The majority are from Rutgers, but in any year there are perhaps a half dozen from colleges and universities such as Dartmouth and Indiana, and even from countries like France and Chile. The research aspect alone, Mr. Forman says, puts the Hutcheson Forest "on the map as the most intensively studied primeval woods on the continent and one of the most intensively studied woods of any sort in North America."

For instance, in a forest in which there is a commitment not to "do" anything that would disturb the natural ecology, one can study the patterns and process of gypsy moth defoliation, and in fact such a study is presently underway. Gypsy moths came into the Forest in the early 1920's from the Duke Gardens, Mr. Forman says, and were eradicated with heavy doses of arsenic. They were not seen again until 1961 and have been closely documented in post-doctoral studies of five and three years duration in the years after 1971 and again after the big defoliation of 1981.

The birds of the Hutcheson Forest have been closely studied over the past 26 years through netting, banding and observation. Mr. Forman estimates that one third of the birds have been banded. The resulting data tells much about bird population fluctuations. For instance, the red-eyed vireo, prevalent when he first became director in 1972, is now uncommon, Mr. Forman says.

One of Mr. Forman's graduate students published his Ph.D. thesis on a study of the dispersal of plants disseminated by bird droppings and the effect of vegetation and landscape structure on that dispersal. Bee foraging patterns; what influences the movement of insects; patterns of tree diameter growth patterns; shrub, grass and soil interactions in the field are just some of the current projects.

In addition a large area has been set aside for the study of plant succession. Plots of specific measurement were plowed over at two year intervals, starting in 1958. Allowed to grow back undisturbed, these plots present a gold mine for measuring, quantifying and cataloguing what comes up and comparing that to another plot at the same or different stage.

ENROUTE TO $4 MILLION: Cyril V. Collins, left, community relations manager for New Jersey Bell, presents a check for $20,000 to Nagle Jackson, artistic director of McCarter Theatre. The check is part of an overall pledge of $50,000 made by Bell Labs, AT&T, and AT&T Technologies, as well as New Jersey Bell to McCarter's $4 million capital campaign. The gifts, which already have reached more than $1.5 million, will finance the renovation of the auditorium, installation of air conditioning, and expansion of the lobbies, among other repairs. The work is scheduled to begin next May.

credentials as a major artist of the cinema, Giancarlo Giannini plays Pasqualino — loser, imitation bandit, breadwinner, lover, soldier — whose only grip on selfhood is his macho code of survival. "Seven Beauties" is a handbook for survival, as Pasqualino's efforts lead him down the path from jail to a mental hospital, from the army to a concentration camp. With each departure, Pasqualino thinks he has left the worst behind; instead, he finds that every new situation is more horrible than the last.

"The Marriage of Maria

Braun," by the late Rainer Werner Fassbinder, is a mixture of soap opera, sexual politics, offbeat comedy, epic romance, current history, social satire, and period piece. Fassbinder's heroine mobilizes herself upward (while waiting for her long-lost soldier husband) and serves as a metaphor for the rise and ultimate fate of post-war Germany, from the fall of Hitler through the recovery and beyond. Hanna Shygulla's performance in the title role established her as the most exciting new German screen performer since Marlene Dietrich.

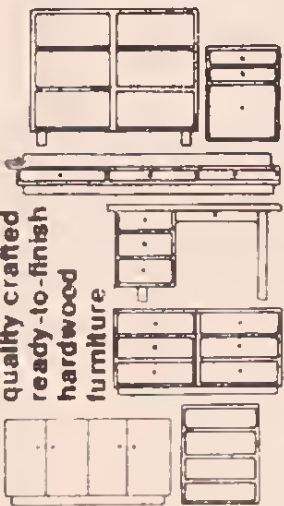

Beginning Saturday (through next Monday) Summer Cinema's double-feature deals with adolescent coming-of-age: "Personal Best" and "Murmur of the Heart." In the former, Mariel Hemingway plays a young track star, the protege of an older runner (Patrice Donnelly) who becomes her friend, morale builder, and even her lover. The sexual relationship between the two women flows from the concern each feels for the other in a world of physical pain and psychic anxiety. "Personal Best" takes the world of track and field as a microcosm for the ecstasies and pains of self-fulfillment in its tale of a young female athlete struggling out of adolescence into womanhood.

French director Louis Malle's "Murmur of the Heart" has an equally controversial subject — incest — as it follows an adolescent French boy as he comes of age and to terms with the puzzle and challenge of sexuality. Malle's movie is an old-fashioned 1950s kind of comedy about growing up, accomplished with honesty, skill and wit. And while there is plenty of eroticism, the director is concerned with the expressions of caring between people, and with the ways in which they relate to each other.

Tickets for Summer Cinema are $3.50 and can be purchased at the door of Kresge Auditorium, located in the Frick Building on the Princeton University Campus. For more information call 452-4242.

For Children's Music. Along with its regular course of private musical instruction, the Westminster Conservatory will offer a variety of classes for children three to eight years old this semester, beginning Thursday, September 13.

The most recent addition to the roster of fall classes is the group piano program, a beginning course for five- to eight-year-olds. Conservatory offers Suzuki instruction in all these instruments. Suzuki method and philosophy emphasize the development of ability through games, listening, and practice, with the parent, student and teacher working together as a team. While the parent must be prepared to attend each lesson and practice with the child at home, it is stressed that no prior knowledge of music is necessary.
Flute is the only instrument which carries an age requirement of five and a half, which is based on the physical maturity necessary to accommodate the instrument. Suzuki students at Westminster Conservatory are frequently asked to perform in the community, and the variety of instruments offered opens many opportunities for family involvement.

Registration for fall classes begins next Monday. For further information call the Conservatory office at 921-7104 or 924-6259.

Included in this four-semester course is instruction in singing and vocal technique; moving to music; ear training; playing instruments alone and in ensemble; and the basics of sight reading and musical notation. Many of the concepts of learning in Kindermusik can be carried over into the school classroom.

Many who have heard of the Suzuki method of training young instrumental musicians, which begins with children as young as three, do not realize that this method includes instruction in cello, viola, piano and flute, as well as violin. The Westminster

Major Facelift for Baker Rink Underway; Tigers Will Have Better Schedule, Too

Followers of the Princeton men's ice hockey team, a dedicated breed who long ago found ways to achieve satisfaction without the benefit of a winning record, will be doubly rewarded this winter.

First, the University has finally begun renovation of the ancient and outmoded confines of Baker Rink. Actually, team dressing rooms were redone two years ago and a new refrigeration system was installed, but the work underway now will be a vast improvement for spectators.

In addition, the schedule has been completely revamped and will feature more contests on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, rather than several of those odd Monday or Tuesday evening encounters. All in all it should bring more people into the rink to cheer for a team looking for its first winning season in 16 years.

SPORTS

Coach Jim Higgins got another decent bunch of recruits on top of the solid freshman class last year. That might begin to pay off on the ice, if injuries to key personnel that plagued the team last year can be avoided.

"Down in Front, Please!" Any regular visitor to the rink is well aware of the cold concrete slabs and splintery boards that have masqueraded as seats all these years. A walkway divides the six rows, and the view of those sitting in the top three is often obstructed.

This aisle will be moved to the rear to encircle the entire section of seats. The old cement risers will give way to individual molded fiberglass seats, similar to those in Har-

NEW COMFORT FOR DEDICATED BREED: Followers of the Princeton University men's ice hockey team — a dedicated breed — will be able to watch the Tigers in new comfort. vard's Bright Rink. The seating capacity of about 2,200 will not change.

The ticket booth, entrance and that impossibly jammed refreshment area will also undergo alterations. The present lighting system will be placed with a brighter but less glaring one. A new sound system will make it possible to actually hear the voice of the public address announcer above the crowd noise.

The scoreboard hanging on the wall at one end will disappear, replaced by a new model hanging in the center. It will provide more information. The press platform, currently extending from the side wall opposite the team boxes will be moved to the end wall and enlarged.

It should all look wonderful when completed, and hopefully that will be before the end of November when the Tigers play their first home games.

Schedule Changes. Whether the rink is ready or not, Tiger skaters will face a changed schedule, based on a home and home series with 10 opponents. These contests will all fall on Friday, Saturday nights or Sunday afternoons.

The new schedule was drawn up when six Division I teams, Northeastern, Providence, Boston University, Boston College, New Hampshire and Maine, decided to form their own league. The Tigers, who had played each of these teams in past seasons, will meet them much less frequently in the future, and possibly not at all.

Instead, they will combine with the other five Ivy opponents, plus Army, Lawrence, Clarkson, RPI, Colgate and Vermont to form a 12-team league. Teams closest to each other geographically will travel in pairs for weekend games, as the eight Ivy basketball teams do now. Princeton is paired with Army, but the Cadets will only play a half season in the new league this year, meeting Princeton and all other league teams just once. They expect to commit to the full schedule for the 1985-86 season.

The Orange and Black will meet four other non-league opponents. These will change from one year to another. Holy Cross, Notre Dame, Concordia (a Canadian team) and US International (a West Coast team) are on this winter's schedule. Some of these games will be on weekday nights.

Dartmouth and Harvard will open the home schedule in Baker Rink on Friday and Saturday night, November 23 and 24. Princeton opens the season a week before in upper New York state against Cornell and Colgate. Who knows, with new surroundings and a new schedule, the fortunes of the Princeton hockey team might change, too.

hitter, assisted by Doreen Ragazzo in relief. At the plate, Dee Vertucci was 3-for-3, including a triple. Sandi Hibbs had a pair of hits and Andrea Perrine contributed a triple.

The Cornsters pounded Dot's with 25 hits. Grace Durland led the attack with four hits, including a triple, while Carol Knapp, Donna Nicholson and Perrine all connected for three hits in four at bats. Dee Discavage, Hibbs and Baxter also had three hits apiece. Louann Slocum-Robidoux fired a three-hitter to get the win, with Ragazzo again performing well in relief.

As league champions, SJC drew a first-round bye in the playoffs. They will play their first game Thursday nights at 6:30 on Field No. 2 at Mercer County Park.

In addition to the aforementioned offensive statistics, team coach and statistician Robert O. Smyth compiled these defensive stats. In 27 games this season, The Corn shut out its opponent 12 times, allowed one run in eight games and two runs in four. It allowed just 13 extra base hits — an average of 0.5 a game — and walked only nine batters.

WOLF MISSES MEDAL

In Olympic Shot Put. Had Princeton University shot putter Augie Wolf come close to his previous best of 70-7¼ he would be wearing an Olympic gold medal.

As it was, Wolf fell far short in the competition of his best effort but only 1¼ inches short of winning a bronze medal. The bronze was captured by Dave Laut, of Goleta, Calif. with a toss of 68-9¼. Wolf's best was 68-8 and a fourth-place finish.

The event was won by Italy's Alessandro Andrei with 69-9. Michael Carter of Dallas, Tex. won the silver medal with 69-2½.

Like Wolf, another Princeton area competitor in the Olympics fell just short and had to settle for a fourth place.

Orlando Caceres, an outstanding wrestler at Trenton State College the past four years and representing Puerto Rico, was defeated by South Korea's Eui-Kon Kim who won the bronze in the 57 kilo freestyle wrestling competition.

PHS Football Practice

Princeton High School football coach Bill Cirullo reports that football practices will begin Monday, August 27 and continue through the week. Incoming freshmen will not participate in summer practice, but will begin the first day of school on Sept. 5.

Equipment will be issued to all upperclass football candidates on Saturday, August 25, at 9:30 a.m. at the high school.

Physical examinations by the school physician will be held Thursday and Friday, the 23rd and 24th at the school. No equipment will be issued without a physical examination. Anyone with a conflict should contact the school nurse, Coach Cirullo said.

University, was the top American finisher in the men's marathon, coming in 11th. Pfitzinger, who was the surprise winner of the U.S. trials, is the son of Harry Pfitzinger, a graduate of Trenton High and Rider College (1940). The senior Pfitzinger was one of Trenton's best known runners in the 1930s and was a city tennis champion.

Pfitzinger ran the marathon, the Olympic's 221st and final event in 2:13:55 — just four minutes behind 37-year-old Carlos Lopes of Portugal who set a new Olympic record of 2:09:55. America's favored entry in the marathon, Alberto Salazar, who set the world record of 2:08:13 in winning the New York Marathon in 1981, faded and finished 15th.

Interviewed after the marathon, the bearded Pfitzinger said that he definitely would compete in the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, Korea. "Today," he said, "was a step toward establishing my credibility."

ing the climate by measuring tree rings thrives deep within the Hutcheson Forest where scientists from Columbia University have been taking corings from some of the white oaks. The oldest tree dates to 1699, they say, and most are 250 years old on the average.

Mr. Forman says the relatively shallow soil, which dries up in a drought and shows up clearly in the ring widths, makes the Forest a particularly valuable place to conduct this type of research. The Forest's dendrochronological record was used to date the floor boards in a historic house in northern New Jersey, he says.

Mr. Forman's own interest is in another relatively new area, that of landscape ecology. Ecologists, he points out, tend to study relatively homogenous ecosystems, such as a marsh, a woodlot, an agricultural field, each of which is an element in the landscape.

Landscape ecology focuses on the spatial relationship among landscape elements or ecosystems, the flows of energy, plants and animals among these elements, and how it all changes through time. He calls it the important development in ecology today and one that involves other disciplines, such as regional planning, geography, landscape architecture and wild life ecology.

Richard T.T. Forman
Work That is Really Fun

Gap in Knowledge. "There has been a significant gap in our knowledge of the environment," Mr. Forman points out. "The tendency is to look within an ecosystem, rather than how ecosystems are related." He was the co-organizer of a National Science Foundation funded workshop on landscape ecology in Illinois in 1983 and has completed a book entitled "Principles of Landscape Ecology" with a French colleague that is in press with John Wiley and Sons in New York.

His work in this new field over the past 12 years has led to the offer from Harvard of the post of Pace Professor of Landscape Ecology in the graduate School of Design and Regional Planning. He and his wife Barbara and their three children will be moving to Cambridge, Mass., in the fall of 1985, after taking a sabbatical at Cambridge University, England.

A descriptive adjective that Mr. Forman uses frequently is "fun." Visiting scholars from all over the world coming to the Hutcheson Forest are "fun"; so are the research projects which as director he aids and abets in ways as mundane as seeing to it a new water line is laid in a field. "Really fun" is a course in Biology and Ecological Issues he initiated at Rutgers for non-majors.

Started in 1968, shortly before Earth Day and the hue and cry for "relevant courses," it became the model for such courses and has grown from an initial 30 students to 350, split into two sections of 175, of which he teaches one. Mr. Forman was one of five Rutgers professors to receive a Lindback award for teaching this year. He teaches graduate courses as well, leading class trips to the Southwest, Southeast, the Caribbean and South America.

Public Policy. He says one of the three most interesting projects he has been involved in was the opening of an office in Washington for the Ecological Society of America in 1982-83. The purpose was to bring ecologists and expertise to provide technical know-how to the decision makers in national and international issues.

Another landmark project was editing a major study of the Pine Barrens, its geology and soils; climate, water and aquatic systems; vegetation patterns; animals and animal communities; and people. The third is the landscape ecology — "that's really fun."

He speaks fondly of The Hutcheson Memorial Forest as "my woods" and cites as a major achievement of his tenure the acquisition of 32 additional acres. The effort took five years and five months from beginning to day of dedication and involved negotiations on the local, state and federal levels, as well as with the financial administration at Rutgers.

He is proud too that good relations with the Franklin Township neighbors, and the watchful eye of a caretaker and the researchers, have resulted in a record of no vandalism or theft in the Forest.

Mr. Forman says of the director's job which he is about to relinquish as he moves on in his career: "I think it is the best administrative job anyone can have. Trees don't talk back to you."
